NEW YEAR'S MORN. Dawnlight breaks o'er a world of sin, And the misty stars are drifting, For God taken his jewels in And me veil of night is lifting.

At the dawn of day, while all is still, We will kneel this morn to pray That the aged year which died last night No shadows will cast to day.

The year that's gone is standing now On the sands of a deserted shore; He's left behind his furrowed brow, And springs like a boy once more

To run his race of measured time, Journeying "o'er life's solemn main," Till the clang of another New Year's chime Shall bring us joy again.
